COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

THURSDAY, 3RD APRIL 1873.

EXCHANGE.—From the nature of the London telegrams of yesterday, advising higher prices for Council drafts on India, and a further withdrawal of £164,000 from the Bank of England, a rise in rates here was quite expected, but there has hardly been any appreciable alteration, first class Bills obtaining the same rates as our quotations of yesterday.

SALES AND PURCHASES.

PIECE GOODS.

There is no change whatever to report in the state of the market, and prices are quite nominal. The business passing from both hands is extremely small, but as the supplies of most kinds of Grey Goods are light, there is little or no fear of a decline in rates. First holders are firmly holding out for previous values, but dealers, who are very much discouraged by the long absence of the up-country demand, decline to buy, except in a few cases, at the previous range of prices. The following sales are reported to have been made by European firms yesterday :—

BOMBAY.

DEATH.

KERR—April 1st, at Grant's Buildings, Colaba, Christiana, the beloved wife of James Kerr, Esq., of H. M. Dockyard, aged 42 years, deeply regretted by a large circle of friends.

OTHER PRESIDENCIES.

BIRTHS.

DEVERINNE—March 25th, at Satkhira, the wife of John S. Deverinne, Esq., of twins, a daughter and son. The latter survived a few hours only.

MULLER—March 28th, at Attock, Punjab, the wife of Sub-Conductor F W Muller, in Commissariat charge, of a son.

ROBERTS—April 1st, at the Grove, Mowbray Road, Calcutta, the wife of J S Roberts, Es of things was the establishment of a registration system, and this advice Mr. Campbell has adopted.

THE Hon. Mr. Rogers is about to introduce a bill into the Legislative Council of Bombay to provide for the periodical inspection of steam boilers and prime movers attached thereto in certain districts of this Presidency. The objects and reasons are thus stated—"Owing chiefly to the extension of steam machinery to the ginning and pressing of cotton of late years in the Mofussil, a great number of factories worked by steam power has started up in different parts of the country. These factories are managed in a great measure by men who have but a very slight acquaintance with the nature and management of steam machinery, and the consequent danger to human life has become a matter for serious consideration. One accident attended with loss of life has already occurred at Ahmedabad. Act VI. of 1869, which provides for the inspection of steam boilers and prime movers attached thereto in the city of Bombay, contains no clause by which its operation can be extended to the Mofussil, and it has therefore been found advisable to draft a new Act for the latter, based on the provisions of Act VI. of 1869."

MILITARY ITEM.

A GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL will shortly assemble at Shillong for the trial of Captain Beeston, 42nd Regiment N. I. The charges, we are told, are of some gravity.

THE WRECKED EMIGRANT SHIP.

THE catastrophe of Dungeness has soon been followed by one of even greater magnitude, which was reported amongst the telegrams we published yesterday—viz., the wreck off Halifax of the s. s. Atlantic with a loss of 700 men, women, and children. The Atlantic formed one of the White Star Line of mail steamers between Liverpool and New York. She was probably one of the finest steamers in the world; she was 473 feet long, 3,000 tons burthen, 3,000 horse-power, and was four masted. The vessel was divided into five water tight compartments. The Atlantic has frequently run 390 miles a day, and on two occasions made the passage from Sandy Hook to Queenstown in eight days and a few hours.

HEADS OF INTELLIGENCE.

(Home News, March 14.)

THE second reading of the Dublin University Bill has been negatived by a majority of 3 in a House of 575, the Irish members having united with the Conservatives to defeat the measure. Ministers have resigned, and Mr. Disraeli has been sent for. The general impression is that he will not take office, and that Mr. Gladstone will return to power, pass such measures as are absolutely necessary, and then dissolve. Meantime both Houses have adjourned until March 17. On March 7, Mr. Laing moved that it was contrary to imperial policy to allow a break of gauge in the railway communication between Peshawur and the main railway system of India, but after a protracted debate withdrew the motion.

In the House of Lords, the Supreme Court of Judicature Bill has been read a second time, and the bill to legalise marriage with a deceased wife's sister has been thrown out on the second reading by 74 votes to 49.

The German Parliament has been opened by the Emperor in person. The Crown Prince has returned to Berlin greatly improved in health. The German State Council are to apply eighty millions of thalers from the war indemnity to the construction of ships of war and dockyards in the next ten years. The Queen Dowager of Wurtemberg is dead.

The Spanish Parliament has been dissolved, and the new elections will take place in May for the meeting of the Assembly in June. All Spaniards over twenty-one years of age are to vote. There have been several conflicts between the Carlists and the Republican troops during the past week. The Carlists have seriously interfered with the railways burning stations and destroying the metals. They caused an express train to run off the line at Villafranca, and also killed the driver, stoker, and two brakesmen. The passengers, aided by the troops, fired on the Carlists, who ultimately took to flight. Soroeta, the Carlist leader, has been killed, with many of his band, in a conflict with the troops on the heights of Oyarzun.

It is reported from Berlin that Russia will shortly annex Afghan Turkestan, and extend her frontiers to the Khorassan hills in the west and the Bolor Plateau in the east. It is further reported that Russia has ceded the territory of Baskantschak to the Kirghese of the inner horde.

Her Majesty has left Windsor Castle for London, and has held a levee at Buckingham Palace. To-day Her Majesty holds a drawing-room.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales terminated his visit to Belvoir Castle on March 8, and returned to Marlborough House, where, on March 10, the tenth anniversary of his royal highness's marriage was celebrated by a grand ball.

The election for Mid-Cheshire has terminated in the return of Mr. Leigh, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of 1,390 over Mr. Latham, Liberal.

A Government pension of £25 per annum has been awarded to each of the aged sisters of the late Lieu. Waghorn.

Three persons have been arrested and examined before the Lord Mayor charged with complicity in the recent extensive forgeries on the Bank of England. The detectives, although in active pursuit, have not yet succeeded in capturing the pricipal offenders. The Bank of England has lost £77,000 by the forgeries.

Mary Ann Cotton has been tried and sentenced to death for poisoning her step-son. This woman is suspected of having murdered her three husbands and several of her children at West Auckland.

Sir Richard Airey has met with an accident while hunting. He was thrown from his horse, and has received severe injuries.

A soldier has confessed to being the murderer of Maria Jane Clonsen at Eltham two years ago. He has been examined before the magistrates, but his statement is looked upon with great doubt.

Two new Royal Warrants have just been issued regulating the full-pay and half-pay of combatant officers and the Medical Department of Her Majesty's army.

A similar Warrant, regulating the pay and position of the Indian Medical Service, has been drafted, and will shortly receive Her Majesty's signature.

Lord Romilly, the Master of the Rolls, has resigned. He has served in office since 1851.

The University Boat race is to be rowed on March 29. Both crews appear to be indifferent rowers.

Some excitement has been created in Rome by the reading of an address to the Pope by Prince Lichtenstein condemning in no measured terms the Italian Government. It is said to have been written by the bishop who was expelled from Switzerland.

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK.—Lieut-Col. S. C. D Ryder, B.S.C.; Gen. B. B. Parbly, C.B., M. Inf; Col. W. Russel, Mad. Ret.; Sir R. K. Arbuthnot, Bart.; Sir F. Madden, K. H., F.R.S.; W. It is not usual on this side of the Court to allow Easter Monday or Easter Tuesday as holidays; and they will not be allowed this year.

THE MURDER OF A WIFE AT CAMATEEPOORA.—Yesterday at the Girgaum Police Court a Maratha named Roopa Hybuttee was charged before Mr. Cooper, Second Magistrate, with culpable homicide amounting to murder, in having on or about the 17th March last caused the death of his wife Zappee at Camateepoora. We have already published the particulars of the murder in the Bombay Gazette. The magistrate, after taking the evidence of several witnesses, committed the prisoner to trial at the ensuing Criminal Sessions of the High Court, which commence on the 10th instant.

JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—From a gradation list of Judges and Assistant Judges as it stood on the 8th March last, we see that there are eight appointments of first grade Judges, drawing a salary of Rs 2,325; three appointments of second grade Judges, drawing Rs. 1,800; one appointment of a joint Judge, drawing Rs. 1,800; two appointments of Senior Assistant Judges, drawing Rs. 1,200; two appointments of first grade Assistant Judges, drawing a salary of Rs. 900; three appointments of second grade Assistant Judges, drawing Rs. 800; and two appointments of third grade Assistant Judges, drawing Rs. 600.

THE BOMBAY UNIVERSITY.—For the First Examination in Arts of the Bombay University, the following gentlemen will conduct the examination:—Mr. E. T. Leith and W. C. Webb, in English and History; Dr. F. Kielhorn and Mr. Peter Peterson, in Sanskrit; the Rev. J. S. Beaumont and Mr. J. T. Hathornthwaite, in Latin; Dr. F. G. Joynt and Mr. E. Rehatsek, in Persian; Messrs. Govind Vithul Karkuray and Dinanath Atmaram Dalvi, in Mathematics and Analytical Geometry, &c.; the Rev. D. C. Boyd and the Rev. R. Montgomery, in Logic and Butler's Sermons; Dr. S. Cook and Dr. Kaikhosru Rustumjee Vicajee, in Chemical Physics.

LECTURE ON JURISPRUDENCE.—At a well attended meeting of the Gujerathee Dnyan Prasarak Society (diffuser of knowledge) held at the Framjee Cowasjee Institute on Tuesday afternoon, a lecture on "Jurisprudence" was delivered by Mr. Jehanghier Merwanjee, the well-known Parsee pleader. The lecturer gave an outline of the formation of the laws of various nations; and the Magna Charta, the Habeas Corpus Act, and the Petition of Right, the bulwarks of English liberty, were explained at length. The lecturer spoke in eulogistic terms of the administration of British justice and pointed out the Indian Penal Code as a model of British legislation. The subject, though dry and uninviting to many, was placed before his hearers by Mr. Jehanghir in an attractive shape, and the hearty applause amid which he resumed his seat showed that his discourse was appreciated.

COURT OF PETTY SESSIONS.—At the Court of Petty Sessions held yesterday at the Fort Police Court, before John Connon, Esq., Senior Magistrate, chairman; W. Loudon, Esq, and Ragoonath Narayen, Esq., members, there were two cases in which two Chinamen were charged with having in their possession a greater quantity of opium than one quarter of a Surat seer, contrary to the opium regulations. The quantity of opium found with the prisoners was rather large, being twenty-two pounds or more, and the fine to be levied will amount in both cases to nearly Rs. 800. The prisoners were unable to deposit the fine, and were therefore remanded to jail till the 24th inst. The smuggled opium seemed to have been detected, and the prisoners were brought to justice by the vigilance of Mr. Inspector Colello. The Court ordered the opium to be sent back to the Custom House to be sold by auction in order that its value might be ascertained.

WE regret to hear that Mr. Justice Pinhey has not yet sufficiently recovered from his recent indisposition, which is, no doubt, owing to the protracted inquiry and untiring energy in the recent great forgery case. Mr. Pinhey is at present at Singhur, and will not, we understand, be able to resume his seat on the bench till Monday next.—Poona Observer, April 3.

HAIL AT POONA.—Last evening we had a splendid fall of rain and hail, accompanied with thunder and lightning, which has had the effect of cooling the atmosphere considerably; and not before it was wanted by semi-scorched-up mortals, we may remark. The thermometer which before the rain stood at 96° fell to 84°, and less than that in the night and early morning. The heat for the past few days has been something unbearable, and no such thing as comfortable sleep could be obtained, but now that this fall of rain has worked its salutary effects, we hope for a little breathing time. The hail, we may add, was about the size of a small hazel nut, and quite amused the native population.—Ibid.

MORTUARY RETURNS.—The total number of deaths registered during the week ending Tuesday, the 1st April, was 349, being 9 more than in the preceding week, 76 less than the total of the week ending 2nd April 1872, and 18 less than the mean of the corresponding period in the previous five years. During the week 192 births were reported in the different districts of the city.

SUSPENSION OF PESTONJEE DINSHAW AS A SOLICITOR.

BY an order made yesterday, Pestonjee Dinshaw has been suspended from practice as an attorney, solicitor, and proctor of the High Court, Original Side, and as a vakeel or pleader on the Appellate Side. The Hon. Mr. Scoble, instructed by Messrs. Craigie, Lynch and Owen, appeared yesterday before the Chief Justice and Sir Charles Sargent at the High Court and said that, in the matter of Pestonjee Dinshaw, an attorney, solicitor, and proctor of the Court, he had been instructed, on behalf of the Bombay Law Society, and at the instance of Dr. Dallas, the chairman of the Society, to apply to their Lordships for an order for striking off his name from the roll of attorneys, solicitors, and proctors of the Court, and for removing him from practice. The learned gentleman made the application under section 10 of the Amended Letters Patent of the High Court, which says—"And we do hereby ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Bombay shall have power to make rules for the qualification and admission of proper persons to be advocates, vakeels, and attorneys-at-law of the said High Court, and shall be empowered to remove or to suspend from practice, on reasonable cause, the said advocates, vakeels, or attorneys-at law," &c. It was perfectly clear that the Court has, under the Letters Patent, the same power in this matter as was possessed by the late Supreme Court.

The Chief Justice—Dr. Dallas is the chairman of the Law Society?

Mr. Scoble said he was. The petition states that Pestonjee Dinshaw was, on the 28th day of August 1866, admitted an attorney, solicitor, and proctor of this Court, and as such attorney, solicitor, and proctor, did sign the roll or record of attorneys, solicitors and proctors. That at a Sessions of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery and Admiralty Sessions, &c., holden at the Court House of the said High Court, on the 13th day of February, the said Pestonjee Dinshaw was convicted of having instigated one Kakeeshaw Illahibux to murder one Nicholas DeGa and of having thereby abetted the commission of an offence punishable with death, and received judgment for the said offence, that he, the said Pestonjee Dinshaw, be kept in rigorous imprisonment in the House of Correction at Bombay for the term of seven years, all which appears from the certificate of the Clerk to the Crown. That the petitioner is chairman of the Bombay Law Society, which Society is composed of attorneys, solicitors, and proctors practising in Bombay. That by rule 13 of the said Society, it is provided that, if any mal-practice on the part of any attorney or solicitor of Bombay come to the knowledge of the committee of the said Society, they may, if they think fit, bring it to the notice of the Court and take such proceedings in reference thereto as they may think proper. That the conviction of the said Pestonjee Dinshaw having come to the knowledge of the committee of the Society, a special meeting was convened on the 15th day of February last, to consider whether any and what proceedings should be taken with regard to the said Pestonjee Dinshaw; and the members of the said committee then present resolved to move this Court to have the said Pestonjee Dinshaw struck off the rolls. The petitioner submits that, from the proceedings and evidence in the case in the said certificate referred to, and from the conviction therein mentioned, it appears that the said Pestonjee Dinshaw is unfit to be or to practise as an attorney, solicitor, or proctor of this Court; and he, therefore, both on his own behalf and on that of the other members of his profession, prays that the name of the said Pestonjee Dinshaw be struck off the rolls of the attorneys, solicitors, and proctors of this Court. The petition, Mr. Scoble said, was verified by a short affidavit by Dr. Dallas to the effect that the statements of the petition are correct to the best of his knowledge and belief. Appended to the petition was a certificate by the Clerk of the Crown, stating that Pestonjee Dinshaw was convicted of the abovementioned charge at the last Criminal Sessions and was sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for seven years.

The Chief Justice—Have you any proof of the service of the petition and notice on Pestonjee Dinshaw?

Mr. Scoble read an affidavit by Succaram Runsord, a Sheriff's bailiff, stating that, on the 28th March last, the notice was served upon Pestonjee Dinshaw on his way in custody from the Court (where he had come to give evidence in a civil suit brought against him) to the House of Correction. Such service, said the Advocate-General, upon a person in the position of Pestonjee Dinshaw, was good service, according to the decision in re George Thompson (13 Common Bench Reports, new series, 288). An objection was taken in that case to such service, but it was overruled.

Mr. Inverarity said he appeared for Pestonjee Dinshaw. (He was instructed by Messrs. Macfarlane and Skipsey.)

Mr. Scoble said there was an affidavit made by Pestonjee Dinshaw which he might read before he proceeded to draw their Lordships' attention to the authorities, which, he said, seemed to him to be conclusive. The affidavit of Pestonjee says—"I am advised and verily believe that the conviction and sentence referred to in the said petition of Mr. Dallas were and are unlawful and improper under the circumstances, and for the reasons mentioned in the petition to this Court of me and of my co-defendant Succaram Raghoba, which last mentioned petition was sworn on the 22nd day of February 1873, and to which I crave leave to refer; and I say that I am innocent of the charges upon which the said conviction and sentence are founded. Feeling aggrieved by the said conviction and sentence and the judgment and order of this Court, sitting as a full Court, delivered and made on the 24th day of March 1873, I am taking steps (by my attorneys) to apply to this Court for leave to appeal to Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen in Council against the said conviction, sentence, judgment, and orders, and to take all other necessary things to have the matters of the said conviction, sentence, judgment and orders investigated by the said final court of appeal. An application to this Court for leave to appeal as aforesaid will, as I am informed and believe, be made on my behalf and on behalf of the said Succaram Raghoba in a short time. Owing to my confinement in jail I am not able to instruct my attorneys properly and to make a proper opposition to the present application, the time I have at my disposal being limited, and the opportunities I have of seeing my legal advis

ATTEMPTS UPON MY LIFE.

IN TWO PARTS.—PART II.

(Once a Week.)

THE second attempt on my life was the following. On one and the same day, tidings reached me from my detectives at Kafrzyat, Cairo, and Suez, that a gang of seventy thieves had planned to stop the mail on its way to Suez, rob the P. and O. passengers going out to India, and carry off two hundred thousand pounds in specie of the Austrian Bullion Company, as well as the cases of dollars intended for the China market. The camels with the specie chests, and the omnibuses with the passengers, were both to be stopped between Cairo and Suez, and all who resisted were to be at once stabbed or shot down. It had been calculated that the passengers going out would carry with them large sums in money, and many articles of jewellery. Some of the assassins assembled at Cairo had proposed that I should be first put out of the way, as I had always been a stumbling-block to them.

I instantly wrote back for proofs of the truth of these rumours. The detectives sent back, enclosing me the private marks on every case of specie that was coming from London. Those marks had come by telegraph, and had been communicated by some person in authority, who had sent them to guide the thieves. Upon this, as there was not much time to waste, I wrote to Suez to have the detectives trebled, and for answers to the following questions:—

"Who was the most corrupt agent of the Austrian Company at Suez?"

"Who was the most avaricious agent there?"

"Who traded on the stores, and made most private profit?"

"Who kept up the most direct communication with London?"

"Who went oftenest to Cairo, and 'flashed' his money about most at the foreign hotels?"

In six days the following answers reached me from Suez:—

"Mr. —— goes to Cairo once a week, and spends twenty pounds a trip. He has a brother at Malta, a brother-in-law at Alexandria, a father at Southampton, and friends in the Austrian offices. His Suez friends are only those who rob the Austrian Company. Except —— and ——, all the rest are working for themselves here. We have no further information to give."

I felt like a traveller in the desert without a compass; I did not know which way to turn. Mankind had been my books, and the world my school; but here was a plot I knew not how to baffle. Every hour the Austrian steamer was bringing its cargo nearer to destruction, and I stood there helpless. I determined to turn my face in another direction; and searching over the map of Egypt, as a dog beats a covert, my eye suddenly fell on Kafrzyat. A sudden instinct, that seemed almost like inspiration, told me that that place would naturally be chosen as the half-way house, or rendezvous where the Cairo thieves could meet their brothers of Alexandria. I at once telegraphed to the detectives at Kafrzyat:—

"Let me know if any railway employe at your station has frequent private conversations with foreigners going up and down. Who makes the loudest complaints about the small articles that have recently been so frequently lost at your refreshment room? Tell me the nationalities of the various waiters in the refreshment room. How often have any of them been to Cairo or Alexandria during the last fortnight? How many foreigners have come to Kafrzyat lately from Cairo and Alexandra, and returned the same day?"

The answer was:—"Half a dozen foreigners came from Alexandria this last week, and two only returned. They met six men from Cairo, one of whom went on to Alexandria. At their meetings the head waiter of the restaurant has always been present, and has been liberally paid." This man was the secretary, and chief man in the confidence of the thieves, and at last I had found out their rendezvous. The liberal fees were so many pinches of snuff thrown in the eyes of the detectives. My great difficulty was that both this rascal and his accomplice, the proprietor of the refreshment bar, were Frenchmen. The moment I arrested them I knew they would claim protection of the great nation—the mischievous protection guaranteed to European criminals by the great Powers. I felt also sure that this French consul would oppose and thwart me in every way—not only seek my dismissal, but, if possible, obtain my punishment. The English consul, too, would sooner hinder me than aid me to carry out my duties, although my efforts were made to protect human lives. But from Baron Huber, the Austrian consul, and Mr. De Leon, the American consul, a man who hated crime and loved honour, I received every possible help. I then laid all my proofs before honest Kurschid Pasha, the head of the Egyptian police, and determined to accept the whole responsibility.

All being arranged, I disguised myself as a shipwrecked sailor, with my boots and hammock slung over my shoulder, and started for Kafrzyat by the train that conveyed the Indian passengers already marked out for destruction. My officers, in their rich uniforms, gay with silver and gold, went in a separate carriage.

The line between Cairo and Alexandria is a single line. The up and down trains meet at Kafrzyat, which is, therefore, chosen as the refreshment place for the Indian passengers. The station there was a Babel of laughing voices. None knew ever what a gunpowder magazine they were walking. To the astonishment of the waiters, I sat down at the centre table, and partook of the best fare. I condemned everything—found the meat stale and ill-cooked, the beer bad, the wine infamous. I scolded in Arab, I shouted inquiries in Italian, till the passengers round me began to grumble. One lady alone (the wife of a judge) saw through my disguise; and I heard her tell her husband that she was sure I was something more than a sailor. The waiters declared I was a drunken rascal, and would not supply me with wine. But a shake of my trusty cudgel frightened them. I threw down on the table three or four pieces of gold, and ordered some champagne, filling my officers' glasses, and drinking their health. I also ordered some port and sherry for them.

"I've plenty of money, you see," I shouted; "and we sailors, you know, earn money like horses, and spend it like asses."

I had previously told my men to arrest, the moment I whistled, the man who brought round the plate for backsheesh. The thief came to me first with the plate, but I passed him on to my left, and told him to come round to me last. The moment he did so, I began whistling "Merrily Danced the Quaker's Wife," and my men, leaping up, clapped on the handcuffs, and dragged him off.

"Didn't I tell you that man wasn't a sailor?" I heard the judge's wife say to her astonished husband.

I then ordered the train to be detained for an hour till the man's boxes could be searched, and till the other thieves in the train could be arrested. In the boxes were found, to my great delight, the name and addresses of the whole gang. I sent the secretary to Alexandria, with strict directions that he should be locked up in a solitary cell, and not allowed to converse with any one.

I then proceeded on by the Cairo train with two or three officers to arrange with the authorities for the arrest of a portion of the gang lodging in the suburbs of that city. Arrived at the next station to Cairo, I got out, and put on a new disguise. I slipped on a red wig and beard, put a green patch over my eye, mounted spectacles, and, with a wooden leg and crutches, defied detection. Hiring a room at some private lodgings the thieves frequented, the moment I got there, I sent for a tanner, who brought me a piece of new tanned kid skin. This I sewed round my leg, and covered with a plaster of linseed meal. I then sent for a doctor, whom I bribed, and his visits threw the man of the house, who was an ally of the thieves, quite off his guard. I paid liberally, giving the man's wife sixpence for every poultice she supplied; and the good woman used to have tears in her eyes when she saw how dark and swollen my leg was.

"Ah," she used to tell her husband, "that poor man's leg will soon have to be cut off, and he'll die under the operation."

The husband and the thieves, dreading losing so good a customer, advised me not to listen to what the surgeon said. By good luck, there happened to be a photographer in the same house, and he took likenesses of the thieves in groups of twelve, and then in single portraits. Many of these I paid for, lending the rogues money, and becoming a general favourite with all. I spent several days in this way and then arrested them all in one night, except two or three, who escaped and got away to India. We found proofs on many of them. In the box of one of these men, named Luigi, who was absent, we discovered a diary, with memoranda of all the robberies and murders he had committed. His last murder had been that of a priest in Syria, and after a note of the fact were these words—"Pity I killed him, for after all I found only a dollar."

Latterly this fellow had plotted and planned for the rest, not himself committing many robberies. On him I found proofs of the guilt of the rest, who corresponded with people in London—Hatton-garden, and Leicester-square.

I offered one of the least guilty his pardon if he would assist me to capture the remainder of the gang. All I wanted was that he should write a letter to the head thief, still at large, as if from Tantch, and he consented. It ran thus:—

"Caro Roberto—Let all our friends know that that agent of ——, the inspector of police at Alexandria, is at Cairo, with his officers, seeking our whereabouts. Enclosed is a bill for twenty pounds, part of a haul of two hundred pounds we made the day before yesterday. We are now staying here. Come by the train that arrives here to-morrow at four. Be very cautious. Bring all our comrades to share in the spoil.—Yours, G."

All went well. The bill was duly presented and paid. The thieves came down by the appointed train, hearts and hands open, to share in the two hundred pounds. When they entered the coffee-shop which their Tantch friends patronized, sixty of my police surrounded the place, and nabbed them all. One of these men was Luigi, the man of the diary, generally called Luigi of the Wooden Finger, a most slippery and notorious rascal, who had a false finger on his left hand. One of his companions, a barber by birth, had been living at Malta as an Italian count, and mixing in society, and everywhere greatly admired.

By my return train, I took the prisoners on to Cairo, and handed them over to Khereddeen Pasha, the chief magistrate, obtaining a legal receipt for their bodies from the local gaoler, and cautioning him sternly not to allow any one to come near the prisoners. Half an hour after, when I returned to the prison, I found, to my vexation, that Luigi with the Wooden Finger had escaped. I examined the door by which he had escaped, and saw at once that Luigi could not have escaped unaided. I threatened to report the whole affair to the viceroy, and frightened them so that one of them at last confessed that Luigi had given sixty pounds for his release to Khereddeen Pasha himself. I instantly posted off to the rascally pasha, and complained bitterly of the negligence of his officers. The pasha was as indignant as any honourable man would have been under such circumstances. He threw down his turban, leaped from his divan and paced up and down, brandishing a knife, vowing by the head of the Prophet he would destroy with his own hand every man connected with the prison; for his honour was ruined, his head in danger, and he was a lost man. I begged him to take matters more easily, and promised to call the next morning again, and report progress. That very night I received intelligence from the sister of one of my policemen, a woman with whom one of the pasha's slaves was in love, that the pasha had resolved on my death. The woman came to Cairo, saw me, and, with tears in her eyes, begged me not to go to the pasha's palace, as I would never leave it alive. The poison was already prepared for me. I replied that I must go, happen what might; and giving the woman a Napoleon, I told her to keep the matter secret from every one. My readers can imagine with what feelings I started the next morning, at the appointed hour, for the palace, with my two small revolvers and the large knife I usually carried carefully concealed. The old white-bearded pasha received me with the kindness of a father, was extremely anxious about my health, and even went so far as to kiss my hand. I told him I was hungry as a bear, and healthy as a trout and he insisted on my having, if not breakfast, at least some coffee. He proposed a glass of port first; for the Egyptians and Turks have no notion of European rules of diet. I accepted the offer, but I quietly resolved not to touch the wine if the bottle came in with the cork already drawn. I took the wine, which came in sealed, and then told the pasha that I had good news for him, for Luigi would be arrested on that very day. He turned rather pale at that unwelcome news; and instantly clapped his his hands as a signal for his favourite slave, Achmet, to bring in the coffee.

The moment Achmet entered with two silver pots and three jewelled cups, I knew my hour had come. The slave did not dare look at me full in the face; his eyes were wandering, his hand shook. It is never usual in the East to bring in two coffeepots, and I felt at once that one of them must contain the poison brewed for me. I was well armed, and determined to die hard; but for all I knew, the courtyard gates were barred and guarded, and they would shoot me down in the enclosure as if I were a mad dog. Achmet poured out coffee for himself, the pasha, and myself; but my coffee only, I observed, came out of the second coffee pot. Luckily for me, the pasha rose at this moment to get me some documents I wanted from an inner room. He probably did not wish to see me in the actual moment of dying. The instant he had gone out, I pulled out a half Napoleon, and asked Achmet to run and get change, as I had often been there, and wanted to give him two or three francs. The Berber ran downstairs looking at the gold as a monkey does at a sweetmeat, and I was alone. I at once threw my coffee away under the sofa and changed the position of the pots. In a few minutes Achmet and the Pasha returned. Achmet then again filled his cup from the dangerous pot, drank it, and offered me a second cup. I declined. Achmet then left the room with the coffeepots and cups. A few minutes afterwards I pretended to feel a great pain in the stomach. The pasha, not wishing me, I suppose, to die in the house, instantly ordered his carriage to take me home, uttering a thousand exclamations of regret at my sudden illness. Poisoning was by no means uncommon in the East then; and was, indeed, as I well knew, an established part of the diplomatic code. I bade the pasha adieu, and drove off, secretly thanking God for my narrow escape. A few hundred yards from the palace I stopped the carriage, got down, and ordered the coachman to tell his master, with many thanks, that the open air had quite recovered me. Within an hour afterwards, the pasha came to my office to express his sincere and heartfelt joy at my recovery, and to tell me that since I left Achmet had died suddenly.

"You infernal old rascal," I stormed out, "Achmet might well die suddenly; for he drank the coffee intended for me. If your gates had not been locked, dog, I would have made you swallow that mixture yourself."

The pasha, frightened at my rage, turned pale, and cried—

"For Allah's sake, do not talk like that, or you will ruin me. It was all that rascal Achmet. It was not my doing, and Providence let the punishment fall on his own accursed head. I am your friend, your sincere friend. Let this ring be the first proof of my friendship, and, for Allah's sake, promise me never again to mention Achmet's attempt on your life, at least while I live. My dear friend, promise me this, and do not disclose that any of my servants were bribed to let Luigi escape."

The ring was a diamond one, worth nearly forty pounds. I refused it. He afterwards offered me a gold watch and chain, and after that a horse. I prosecuted him; but he laid the matter all on Achmet, who could not be put in the witness-box, and wealth purchased him safety. But the scoundrel was afterwards drowned in the conspiracy in which Achmet Pasha perished.

The next day I arrested Luigi by telegraph, at Damietta. He was on his way to Constantinople. His capture was a singular one. Knowing the thief wore a wooden finger covered with painted skin, and kept his suspicious hand always hidden by a glove, I ordered my detectives at certain stations to stop all Europeans and pull their fingers. They did so on a certain day, not knowing my reason, and to their surprise and horror, Luigi's wooden finger came off in their hands.

The gang were all tried by their different consuls. Many got off by bribery; others were condemned to irons for life; a few of the blackest were tied in bags, and drowned by the Egyptian executioners in the port of Alexandria. This was in the days of Said Pasha. Three-fourths of these Italian thieves and assassins had been, remember, driven to crime by the cruelty and oppression of King Bomba and the cruel and imbecile Governments of Tuscany and Parma.

THE POSITIVE SYSTEM OF LIFE ASSURANCE offers a new and easy method of assuring Lives for any amount from Rs. 1,000 upwards on most advantageous terms.

The leading features are:—

1st.—Undertaking Life Assurance only, and not combining with it the more hazardous and less remunerative business of Fire and Marine Insurance.

2nd.—Charging English rates of premium for India, and one uniform rate for the whole world, so abolishing all restrictions on Foreign Residence, Travelling, &c.; the National English Life Table, constructed for the Government, being taken as the basis of the premiums charged.

3rd.—Granting the option to Assurers of paying for their Life Policies a limited number of premiums, extending over five to thirty years, instead of continuing payments during the whole of their life-time, payments ceasing after the term of years arranged for have expired, but the full sum assured being paid by the Company, without deduction, should lapse of life occur before the term of years has expired.

4th.—Participations in the Company's Profits to all Assurers alike, there being but one scale of premiums, and no advantage gained by one class of Assurants at the expense of another.

5th.—Securing to the Assured a sum of money for each premium paid, by giving a Positive Promissory Note, or fully paid-up policy, for the proportion of the sum assured represented by the premium, free from all conditions, and payable "to bearer;" which Promissory Notes, even if future premiums are not paid, remain always in force, and are payable in full at death of the Assured, or may be surrendered to the Company during his lifetime for 40 per cent. of the premiums paid.

6th.—Making a sure provision for the payment of claims by investing in Government Securities, in Trust with the Official Trustee of Bombay, all the Net Premiums received (four-fifths of the gross premiums), and which Fund is only available for the payment of Policies, and can be used for no other purpose. Additional security to Policyholders is afforded by the investment in Consols in England of 20 per cent. of the paid-up Capital of the Company, to provide for any extraordinary mortality amongst the Assured, and to be drawn upon only in case of the Premium Fund failing to meet claims.

7th.—Exempting sums payable under Positive Note, from Legacy Duty or other charges, neither Probate of Will nor Letters of Administration being necessary to legalize their payment.

THE POSITIVE SYSTEM
ILLUSTRATED BY ASSURANCE ON 20 LIVES
ACTUALLY COMPLETED IN CALCUTTA.

Being a portion of the business effected during the first seven weeks of the Company's experience in India.
